PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

The Tomato Wagon Junior Entrepreneur Program at Interfaith Learning Garden Teaches Kids to GROW MONEY

Interfaith Food Bank and Junior Entrepreneur Parker Metz from The Tomato Wagon are teaming up again to teach kids how to grow their own money! Kids will learn to grow plants, develop products, and sell them in an environment for real money! They will also have fun learning entrepreneurial and financial management skills such as goal setting, budgeting, customer service, saving, sales strategies and investing their hard earned money!

“The great thing about the Junior Entrepreneur program is that it is designed and led by an inspiring young entrepreneur,” says Danielle McIntyre, executive director with Interfaith Food Bank. “Parker Metz has discovered a passion for entrepreneurship and he’s eager to share his knowledge with other kids. Those who participated last year will enjoy this year’s format just as much, and this year, the group will work together to earn real cash!”

The 10 week long session is available to youth ages 8 – 12, and is open to all local youth with a passion for learning to grow their money. Those who are interested can sign up to participate in Friday afternoon sessions from March 9th – May 25th at the Interfaith Learning Garden, located at Interfaith Food Bank Society of Lethbridge.

FREE JUNIOR ENTREPRENEUR PROGRAM:

Fridays at 2:30pm March 9 – May 25th.

Interfaith Food Bank 1103 – 3rd Ave. North
